The UK's only dedicated event for active traders

THE LONDON TRADER SHOW 2022 A one-day event for today's retail trader

Friday 25th February 2022; Novotel London West

Today's trader faces some extremely tough choices – every day. The London Trader Show, sponsored by Alvexo and the London Academy of Trading, is here to help traders navigate their way through an increasingly diverse and opaque industry. To help them plan a clear, achievable path to trading success, and profit, by setting realistic goals and finding out how, what and where to go to make them a reality.

Yael Kleinman, Managing Director of VPR Safe Financial Group said "It is important for us to sponsor the London Trader Show as we are passionate about improving the way the trading world works. As the conference inspires traders to be confident and responsible Alvexo supports those same objectives by helping people discover the unlimited opportunities in the world's financial markets. And is our mission to be the financial partner of choice for traders with local and international market focus."

Since launching in 2011, the London Trader Show has welcomed over 15,000 delegates through the doors.

From learning which trading opportunities will best serve their needs, to making new contacts and discovering more about trading: options trading, commodities trading, currency trading and how day trading can complement an existing investment portfolio. The London Trader Show brings it all together in one place, for one day, for traders.

Paddy Osborn, Academic Dean and Managing Director of the London Academy of Trading, Silver Sponsors, said, “We are very excited to be exhibiting, and sponsoring, at the London Trader Show this month, and we’re looking forward to meeting many like-minded traders and investors. I believe the London Academy of Trading is ideally positioned to help retail traders develop their knowledge and skills to maximise their trading performance, whether trading for themselves or looking to develop a more professional approach.”

The London Trader Show features trading workshops, a wide range of free seminars, live debates and interviews throughout the day, a Lunchtime Summit panel session, where the panel discuss, “Trading in 2022: stocks, forex, crypto and commodities”. Delegates can browse the interactive exhibition featuring some of the top banks and brokers, education companies, data providers and trading software – it’s a very busy and exciting day for all concerned.

Sponsored by Alvexo and the London Academy of Trading, the London Trader Show is designed specifically to provide independent training and education to active traders in the UK, supporting individuals who seek to boost profits through trading, secure an income stream in retirement, enhance returns through investing, and/or to make a full-time career in trading.

Lisa Campbell, Managing Director of Investor Conferences (UK) Ltd, Organisers of the London Trader Show says, “We thank the sponsors of the London Trader Show, companies that have taken this opportunity to show their support for retail traders in the UK. For delegates, the London Trader Show offers a unique, live forum, where delegates can learn new trading skills, meet and speak to the people in the industry, explore new opportunities and share experiences with like-minded traders. It’s a valuable day for helping today’s trader find their bearings, and position themselves for profit in 2022 .”

Doors open promptly at 9.30 am and the show runs right through until 5.00 pm, providing a packed schedule throughout. Join us for a day at the London Trader Show, and immerse yourself in the world of trading, under one roof, for one day.
